GIANT PENGUIN FOUND IN GALILEO CORRIDORS

Claremont (PPI): An enormous penguin, nearly six feet in length, was found in the corridors of Harvey Mudd College’s Libra Complex late Wednesday evening. Scientists from Penguin Pleasures, a volunteer rescue group, said the animal appeared to have expired from an overdose of sugar. “Sadly, many people do not realize that penguins are terribly sensitive to sweets,” stated Dr. D.I. Section as she examined the corpse. “I imagine that a well-meaning person must have intended to give it a treat.”

The saddened campus plans to hold a moment of silence during final exams, since students are generally quiet and mournful during that time anyway.
Earthquake (practice)!

At 10:40 this morning…
• Practice the Drop, Cover, and Hold On technique
• (What’s that?)
• But what if …?
  (Google “Great ShakeOut Earthquake Safety Video Series”)

Midterm Review

On your worksheet:
• List 3 things you feel you understand well
• List 3 things you’d like to review more
• List 3 questions you’d like to ask today